TRIAL of SOLOMON SCISSARS, &c. for PLACIARISM. S OME time ago, an account was given of the trial of one Mr Solomon Sciffars, a felon, who was found guilty of theft. After full conviction, he received a pardon, on condition of very faithful promifes to reform his evil ways, and leave off the heinous fin of stealing literary performances. I am forry to have it to fay, that he soon returned to his old pranks, and was lately apprehended, tried, and cast, for the crime. He now went by the name of Peter Plagiary. Smyrna, July 5. Letters from Alexandria advise, that a dreadful defolation continues to prevail in Egypt, both from the extreme want of provisions and the contagious diseases which daily make great ravages there, and especially at Cairo, where near 3000 persons die daily. Even in one single day lately 3600 Mahometans died, exclusive of people of other religions. This desolation is attributed to the petitiential contagion of the waters of the Nile, into which for some time past the dead bodies have been thrown, through a milinterpretation

Philadelphia, June 3. The following Memorial of the Committee of Merchants and Traders of this city has been presented to the Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, in General Assembly met. - It respectfully That it has been considered and lamented as a fundamen-

But the more certain inconveniencies foreseen, and now experimentally felt, flow from the unequal footing this circumstance pus us on with other nations, and by which we stand in a very fingular and disadvantageous situation; for, while the berty to limit us to fuch branches of theirs, as interest or policy may dictate, unreltrained by any apprehensions, as long as the power remains severally with the States, of being met and opposed by any consistent and effect sal restrictions on our part: and accordingly we at this time are under the effects of European lystems, which, abridging us of the most beneficial parts of the commerce we had with them, ungenerously invite us to those only which have a tendency eventually to impoverish and weaken our country. However tenacious fome of the States may hitherto have been of the privilege in question, it is imposfible not to fee, that it cannot be longer reffrained, but at the expense of the general welfare. We, confequently, are not without hopes, that a recommendation com Congress to the States to vest that body with the necessary powers over the com-mirce of the United States, would be well received on their It is, therefore, the prayer of your Memorialists, that your Honourable House would endeavour to procure such a recommendation from Congress, giving affurances, at the same time, of a disposition in the mercantile interests of Pennsylvania, favourable thereto.

SHOPTAX.

Yesterday, agreeable to public advertisement, a number of the commissioners of the land-tax met at Guildhall, to qualify for carrying into execution in the city of London and liberties, an act of Parliament, entitled "An act for granting to his Maoffy certain duties on shops within Great Britain." The friends to this obnoxious tax met earlier than the time appointed, and on many of the commissioners attempting to go into the room, they were stopped, and told that no admission could be given till they qualified; on this some qualified, but the make rity would not, and inlifted on going in without. When the got into the room, Mr Everett the banker took the chair, and warm altercation enfued, relative to the steps that should be

Mr Lyerett, Mr Wethers, Mr Chapman, and Mr Riving ton, were the principal speakers in favour of the tax, and threatened those who interrupted the proceeding with actions for the penalty of 100 l. which is expressed in the act against fuch perfons as shall wilfully interrupt the commissioners in the due exercife of their office

Alderman Skinner, Mr Wyner, Mr Ridgeway, Mr Bird. and Mr Neuenburgh reprobated the tax in strong terms, and were for adjourning the further confideration of the business until the 20th of September. With respect to actions for recovery of the penalty, they confidered themselves free to speak their mind, at all events, before the act was read; for until that was done, the commission was not properly opened.

Alderman Skinner was extremely pointed in the bufiness, and alked Mr Everett to answer him as a gentleman, whether the reason of his taking so active a part in so obnoxious a tax, was not in consequence of a promise of his being appointed Receiver-General of the tax ? Mr Everett said, he was not bound to answer any such que-

The majority then withdrew, and the 23 who remained in the room, read the act, and qualified. Several others then came, and, as they could not vote for the choice of a clerk without qualifying, they also qualified.

The conduct of Mr Alderman Skinner has been eminently virtuous on the occasion of the shop-tax. He is not involved in the oppression. Though in the annual acquisition of thoufands, he is totally relieved, while men, who are in the lowest circumstances, are singled out, and chosen for the grievance. "It was this," he declared at the meeting, "which struck and interested him in the business. If the minister had taken the very reverse of the path he had pursued-if he had taxed those whom he has spared, and spared whom he has taxed, he would have chearfully qualified for carrying into effect the equitable measure." Such a fentiment was worthy of the magistrate, who, on every occasion which called for the active benevolence of wealth, has been the first to animate and direct the

The FUNERAL of the IRISH PROPOSITIONS.

Soon after the Chancellor of the Exchequer in Ireland had arrived with the melancholy news of the desperate exit of the Irish Propositions, a cabinet council was held, in order to determine what was to be done with the body. After much debate, and much acrimony on the circumstance of the Irish publicly putting to death this favourite of the minister, and ignominiously taking out its bowels, and throwing them in his face, it was at last determined to subalax the copple. Let it lie in state a few days in Downing street, and then privately bury it under the treasury bench in St Stephen's Chapel. Accordingly, a parchment cossin was provided; and yesterday more. ing, at four o'clock, the remains of this darling child were carried to Palace-yard, attended by Lord Camden, Mr Pitt, the two Secretaries of State, and Mr Jenkinson, and interred, without any further circumstances than that of Dr Prettyman reading the following extraordinary

Extract of a letter from Bengal.

Camp near Ferochabad, in the Duab, Dec. 16. 1784. " A great dearth has desolated the upper provinces of this beautiful country. Hardly any rain has fallen during four years. In confequence, the crops have failed; and the poor starved. The scarcity was also in Bengal, but its being adder better government, preferved it from monopolists and ren. Thanks to the Almighty! a plentiful crop promifes this year plenty of rain having fallen. From my enquiries, I find, hah of the inhabitants of the Duab and Rohileund have perished. Every ditch, road, brook, pond, and ftreet, of thefe condtries were strewed with the dead bodies of men, women, and children. Besides, the Hindoos do not bury their dead, but burn them, if they have Hindoos do not bury their dead, but burn them, if they have homey to buy seuel. We have been often obliged to shift our name, on account of the stench arising from the putresaction of many bodies. When you reslect, that the people of Hindoon are the most abstence in the world; that their daily food is never shesh; hardly any thing else than about a feer (not quite two pounds weight) of wheat or barley made into cakes, and baked over a few lighted sticks. When you understand, are shesh is their food, and simple water their drink, you may and baked over a rew lighted theks. When you understand, that such is their food, and simple water their drink, you may form some judgment of the rage of this famine, which could deprive them of even this little. Men and women, with their children in their hands, slocked to camp, offering themselves for sale, for a quart of cora. Mothers fold their children for the same each, for the fourth part of a runse or half events. four annas each, (or the fourth part of a rupee or half-crown.) four annas each, (or the fourth part of a rupee or half-crown.) Leould have purchased a thousand children at this price, from four to ten years of age. I actually did purchase three very sine children, between seven and eight years of age, for three supees, or half-crowns. I might have had them for a third of the sun, together with their mothers. I have them now. I had writings delivered with them, properly attefted by the Cut-val (or Magistrate). But as I shudder at the thought of one wal (or Magistrate). But as I shudder at the thought of one human creature being slave to another, and fearing, should any scident happen to me, my executors might fell them, I have selftroyed the writings, and declared them free. My sole mower for purchasing them was, to preferre them from death.

This the most shocking instance of the effect of famine controlled, is what I am going to relate, and which happened half a quarter of a mile from me. A poor woman at this pace had not tasted food for five days. In this extremity she was delivered of a live child. Hunger was so extreme, that he can off the head of the infant, and threw it away: the shocking the strength of the head of the infant, and threw it away: the shocking the strength of the strength of the infant. he cut off the head of the infant, and threw it away; the [body the put into an oven of hot fand, in which the people of his country parch their corn: when it was fomething roafted, he drew it forth, and had actually eaten the arm and shoulder before it was discovered. I nnderstand she perished next day. bard, who are so accustomed to cherish dogs, and receive the sought submission from them, are associated, no doubt, to hear fondest submission from them, are attentified, no doubt, to hear of these creatures devouring dead bodies of men in India. But I must set you right, by informing you, that dogs are not printe property in this country as in England: they are common to all. A native would no more call a Parrier (dog) bis than be would the jackal of the field. Wise nature has so ordered, that this hot country, in which self putrisses almost as soon as life leaves it, abound with these dogs, called parriars: they are in shape like a fox dog in England, but longer legged. Every willage and town has many of them; they go up and down the beets feeking dead carcafes, which they devour, whether of hores, bullocks, sheep, or men. Nothing comes amis to them; no one offends them; they are considered of effential. ferrice, and they are really fo, preferving the land from peftiknee, which animal corruption would certainly bring on with-out them. The fagacity of these animals is associating: they have been seen to walk by a famished wretch, in expectation of inking with weakness, every now and then looking in his face, as if to enquire how long he would be kept from his prey. So foon as the unhappy man falls, the dog feizes the part next him, which is generally the bowels, and tears them out before the wretch's face. It is observable, that although the poor victim is unable to defend himself long before he falls, yet the dog sever attacks him while he walks or stands. I have seen hundreds of bodies with two or three dogs tugging the limbs to Extract of a letter from a Gentleman at New-York, July 14. "There is great reason to believe that Congress have pledged Rhode-Island to the French Government for monies advaned knode-litand to the French Covernment for monies advan-ced by and due to the treasury of his most Christian Majesty; are that the French colony now settling there is only a virtual taking possession thereof. This is common talk here, and even the staunchest friends of Congress do not attempt to deny it, but rather applaud it as a measure of gratitude which will en-sure states. There is a remakable laxity of a legal government; but a few miles only from the city it is much more remarkable and confpicuous. No ships at Sandy-Hook, and few in the harbour. The French Commodore on the American station is just come up with three ships.

EDINBURGH

Extract of a letter from London, Aug. 25. tation as to what will be the result of the frequent meetings that are held between the feveral members of Administration, and the friends of the two Marquisses, respecting the arrangement of a new Ministry.

"It is considertly said, that the Administration will positively be broke up; but that no one is willing to come into office until the differences subfishing between Great Britain and the Court of France shall be finally adjusted, which, whatever may be pretended, is at present very far from being the case.

of It is a fact, that the Cabinet have not yet come to any resolution whether to advise the Crown to protogue the Parliament, or let it meet in October, and proceed to a farther confideration of a commercial arrangement between Great Britain and Ireland.

"The most probable conjecture is, that Parliament will be prorogued, very likely until after Christmas next, and that, in the mean time, the Marquis of Buckingham will be induced to take the reins of Government, in order that fuch measures may be taken under his auspices as may bid fair to do away all jealousy and prejudice between Great Britain and Ireland.

Before Mr Pitt retires from office, feveral of his friends, it is faid, will be called to the Upper House.

"The special commission ordered against the persons consined for attempting to break from the King's Beach prison, by blowing up the wall thereof, is withdrawn, by the expess command of a great personage. This may be depended upon as a

"Mr A—n, the celebrated corn-factor, of whose sentence to stand in the pillory so much has been said, it is now considertly reported, is to undergo that part of his judgment the second Friday in September."

Yesterday, the Right Hon. James Hunter-Blair, Lord Provost of this city, fet out for London.

Saturday night, two people were knocked down at the head of Gray's Close, and their hats carried off. These offences against the police of the city, which have of late become so frequent, we are hopeful will now meet with an effectual check. A number of disorderly fellows, by order of the Magistrates, have been apprehended fince Saturday night. Some of them are at present under examination; and, from what has come out against them, there is little doubt of their having been concerned in the various depredations committed in the ffreets of this city for these eight or ten days past.

The harvest is now become general through Cumberland, &c. and affords the pleafing prospect of a very plentiful crop, if the weather proves seasonable; at present there is a general complaint of too much rain. Tuesday, a ship belonging to Sunderland, in attempting to make that harbour, was drove on shore, but is since got off

The ship Lady Maria, which was drove on shore near Seahame, in the dreadful ftorm in December last, was, after many fruitless attempts, happily got off on Wednesday morning, and carried into Hartlepool.

" Our Chief Governor has at last written in the most positive manner to Mr Pitt, that he is determined to be no longer the vehicle of only obnoxious measures; and that unless he is enabled to bring fomething forward for the good of Ireland, without a damning condition annexed to it, he will never meet without a damning condition annexed to it, he will never meet its Parliament again; a fatisfactory answer is expected by him before the adjournment expires; if not, he spends his Christmas in London; for which reason, and to be prepared as all events, the tradesmen's bills have been ordered in this week.

"It is the general opinion, that the addresses from our Houses to the Lord Lieutenant, usual at the close of every feshon, will not be moved for at the next meeting, Administration not chooling to have the public minds agitated any further this year, but to let this long-pretracted and unlucky fession expire in peace.

"Mr Pery will not take the chair in the House of Commons when the House meets after the adjournment: the clerk will, as foon as the House fills, read the relignation, after which the members will proceed to elect a Speaker, and, on the day following, present the object of their choice to his Grace the Lord Lieutenant for approbation; with which ceremony, and giving the Royal affent to what bills are now ready, the fellion will end.

 All is hurry and confusion; the Speaker's relignation has et all parties atwork, and neither the candidates nor their friends are idle. One gentleman's abilities; another's virtues .: the mental qualifications of one; the moral qualifications of the other - in short, all is bombastic praise, or fatire unrestrained.
